GDS founder Dr. Adam Winstock and analytical toxicologist John Ramsey have created a number of films delivering essential information on the world's most commonly used drugs.

Their style is conversational with John and Adam handling real drugs in a laboratory setting. Key areas are focused on - purity, routes of use, acute harms, sought-after effects, harm reduction and treatment options.

In just 5 minutes for each drug we cover:

The appearance of various drugs

Drug prices and purities

Typical doses and frequency of use

How it's commonly used

Safer dosing/harm reduction

Broad description of the effect and its duration

Overdose, acute harms and dependence

Treatment options

"the delivery style of Adam and John is informative and engaging while also being utterly authoritative. In short these are a great resource..." David MacKintosh,
Director, London Drug and Alcohol Policy Forum.

This flexible educational resource can be used as a stand alone program (press and play) or to augment existing drug education packages. Available as discreet 3-6 minutes videos and as single run 35 and 60 minute videos, we also offer training outlines, pre and post assessments and printable PDFs covering the major facts about each drug. Designed for use by those working within the public service (e.g. police, social services, health), education and anyone in the wider general community who requires a concise yet comprehensive drug information resource.
